Blue Hill Data Services: Proud Sponsor at Gartner Symposium/ITxpo 2013

October 16, 2013

Blue Hill Data Services was pleased to be a sponsor at the Gartner Symposium/ITxpo 2013 Event in Orlando, Florida, October 6-10th. It provided us the opportunity to network with more than 9,000 peers, gain knowledge of newly released Gartner research, and enjoy great networking opportunities with the CIO executive teams of Fortune 500 companies, plus have direct access to 175+ Gartner analysts and learn from their presentations and associated research. There were also inspiring keynote speeches from Steve Ballmer, Microsoft; and Eric Schmidt, Executive Chairman, Google.

The highlight of the Gartner Symposium ITxpo Event was a speech given by the Executive Director of Houston Chronicle on behalf of Blue Hill Data Services, “Success in a Private Cloud – Dramatically Reducing Costs and Increasing Efficiency.” To learn how the Houston Chronicle extended their data center capabilities AND reduced their costs substantially, please visit our website to receive this case study.

As a sponsor in the Emerging Technologies Pavilion, the Blue Hill team experienced all that this Gartner event had to offer.

“Blue Hill Data Services was thrilled to be able to extend our brand and become part of this excellent event. It enabled us to network with our customers in a more strategic way, and align with other senior IT executives and gain more insight from them. This helps us as we continue to build roadmaps for our customers in helping to support their requirements.”

John Lalli, Chief Operating Officer and Managing Director
